Discover how companies are using Pigeonhole Live to make their meetings more engaging and interactive

Conference Calls

Trying to take questions efficiently and handling interruptions are pain points we have come to accept as norms of a conference call. With Pigeonhole Live, participants can vote and post questions as they listen on. When it's time, questions in demand can be answered first. Calls can end on time, everyone has clarity on the presentation, and the objectives of the call are all gracefully met.

Daily Pulse Polls

360 employee feedbacks let too much time pass before surfacing morale issues in the team. Instead, you can use Pigeonhole Live to periodically run 'pulse' poll to measure employee morale and sentiments on a scale of 1 to 10. The low effort, regular real-time feedback provides your HR team with good data to propose timely initiatives to keep your employees happy.

Training and Workshops

The key to a successful training session is ensuring your audience are engaged throughout the session and understand the content delivered. Live Q&As give everyone a chance to ask questions without the fear of sounding silly. You can also facilitate brainstorming activities with topic tags and upvotes, so you can easily organize responses, dispel any misunderstandings and crystallise the learning outcomes for your audience.

Live Webcast

While the Live Webcast is an elegant solution in bringing employees together across various time-zones, the Q&A segment remains an asynchronous, non-collaborative nightmare for both the speaker and the virtual audience. With Pigeonhole Live running alongside the Live Webcast, the virtual audience can use Live Q&A to submit and vote on questions for a more organised and effective conversation.

Brainstorming Sessions

Getting different perspectives and ideas to interact is the mark of innovative companies. However, getting everyone to actively contribute and then picking the best ideas to deliberate on is not an easy task. With Pigeonhole Live's Open-Text Polls you can get everyone in your team to submit and vote on ideas to get the best ones out hassle-free. Additionally, with anonymity you can even encourage the boldest, most out of the box ideas that are usually silenced by the fear of ridicule.

Town Halls

Make the most of your town halls by updating employees on strategies and priorities while also measuring their morale, consensus and understanding of the management's message. Engage our Live Q&As to empower your employees to ask the difficult questions anonymously and understand their concerns using Live Polls and Surveys. Answer questions that were not addressed on the spot by adding text answers in your Pigeonhole. Export Engagement Insights in the form of PDF and Excel reports for your internal reference and documentation.

Weekly All-Hands

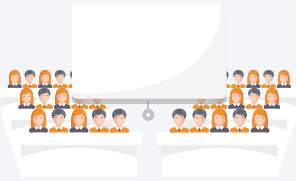

Weekly all-hands is crucial for providing your team with quick updates and aligning weekly priorities. With Pigeonhole Live you can drive candid two-way conversations on pressing issues with features like anonymous Live Q&A, while keeping the mood light with Live Polls and Quizzes for a productive week ahead.

Introduce New Employees

The first day of work is can be daunting for new hires. Make them feel welcomed with a fun welcome session powered by Live Q&A for the team to get to know them better. You can also get new hires to create quizzes about themselves and test the team on who caught the most from the Q&A, making way for ice breakers.

How Pigeonhole Live can be used

Webinars, Conference Calls, Workshops and more

Don't just take our word for it.
Hear from our clients, you are in good company!

"I think that really is a step forward... as it gives the employees a sense of their questions being heard and answered. It's a win-win."

"We definitely see an increase in the engagement, because people are actually voting on questions they want the leaders to answer."
